Jan Kriel Instituut begin 'n nuwe hoofstuk

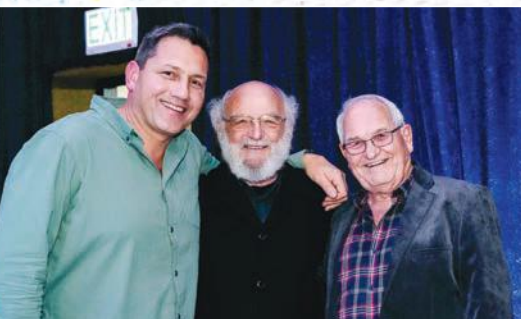

Jan Kriel gronde

Jan Kriel

Presies 'n eeu gelede, in 1925, is die seun, Jan Kriel, op 16-jarige ouderdom oorlede. Weens sy "vallende siekte" kon hy nooit skool bywoon nie. Sy ma, mev. Kriel, het die behoefte van kinders met epilepsie ter harte geneem. Twaalf jaar later, in 1937, het sy met hulp van die plaaslike gemeenskap, die Jan Kriel Tuis en Skool vir kinders met epilepsie in Kuilsrivier gevestig.

Sedert 1942 het die NG Kerk verantwoordelikheid aanvaar vir die ontwikkeling en bestuur van die eiendom en bates wat vandag as Jan Krielskool bekend staan. Fondswerwing, om die voortbestaan van hoë gehalte spesialis-onderrig vir die leerders van Jan Krielskool te verseker, word ook deur die kerk behartig.

Die Instituut se drie direkteure (1986 - 2025)

Jan Kriel Instituut, met die doel om volhoubaar voort te gaan met die nodige ondersteuning aan die leerders van Jan Krielskool.

Sedert 2003 word Jan Kriel Instituut as 'n program van BADISA bestuur, maar die afgelope jare het dit duidelik geword dat dit beter vir werksaamhede sal wees om

In 1996 word die NG Kerk (weens 'n verandering in die Skolewet) noodgedwonge forseer om uit die bestuur van Jan Krielskool (as openbare skool) te onttrek. En só ontstaan die onafhanklik voort te gaan. Na gesprekke tussen die NG Kerk, BADISA en die Instituut se direksie, begin daar vanjaar 'n nuwe hoofstuk.

Vanaf 1 Maart 2025 word die Jan Kriel Instituut as onafhanklike, nie-winsgewende (NPO) en nie-regerings organisasie (NGO) bedryf. Die NG Kerk bly egter steeds betrokke en verbind aan Jan Kriel as 'n lid van die nuwe NPO en eienaar van die eiendom. Die bestuur en werksaamhede van die Jan Kriel Instituut, sowel as die visie en missie om Jan Kriel leerders op alle vlakke te ondersteun, bly onveranderd.

Dankie aan elke donateur en vriend wat oor al hierdie jare die goeie werk by Jan Kriel ondersteun en voortsit.

Indien u enige navrae het of meer inligting verlang, maak gerus kontak.

Geagte Jan Kriel Gemeenskap

Jan Kriel Skool is gebou op die spreekwoord ... 'Gee 'n kind 'n kans'.

In 2025 het ek die geleentheid gehad om dit eerstehands te beleef.

As voorsitter van die beheerliggaam het ek verskeie funksies bygewoon – die matriekafskeid en verskeie prysuitdelings. Elke keer wanneer ek so 'n funksie verlaat het, moes my hemp se knope sterk staan van trots oor wat ons leerders bereik het. Dikwels was daar 'n danklied wat uit my wou ontsnap oor ons leerders en hulle prestasies. En ek sal erken, daar het soms ook 'n traan ontsnap wanneer die trots te veel geword het.

To that end, I want to thank everybody who played a role in all the accomplishments achieved this year – from our learners, who always have a positive attitude; our educators, who get up and show up daily; the support staff and multi-disciplinary team; and our parents, who never give up on our learners' dreams and hopes. You are the cement that keeps this building standing.

To the Jan Kriel Institute, a sincere thank you for your support and your willingness to always assist wherever you can. We know that every child in this school is important to you.

Aan die matrikulante: sterkte en voorspoed met die belangrikste eksamen in julle lewe. Ons weet julle sal uitstekend vaar. En aan die res van ons leerders – ons weet julle sal net so suksesvol wees in julle eindeksamens.

Allow me to address two groups.

To our educators (including the SMT): when you get home on 10 December, take your school bag and accessories and put them in the back of a dark cupboard. Silence all school WhatsApp groups, enjoy every moment of rest, and spend time with loved ones and family.

Secondly, to my fellow members of the Governing Body: thank you for your support, your willingness to serve on committees, and the hours spent on the appointment of new staff members. Your support makes my part of the job so much easier.

Aan ons leerders en ouers: geniet die vakansie. As u reis, reis veilig; geniet die af-tyd, en ons sien uit daarna om 2026 saam met u aan te pak.

During this holiday, may we experience anew the blessings and love of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Groete

Pathological demand avoidance (PDA)

PDA, or nowadays also referred to as EDA (extreme demand avoidance), was introduced in the 1980s to describe some children on the autism spectrum who exhibit an obsessive resistance to everyday demands or requests, resorting to acts that others find shocking or outrageous. They show a sudden change in mood, driven by a need for control, and often experience severe challenges at home and school. If routine requests are pursued, the child's anxiety may increase, leading to verbal or physical aggression, or threats to harm themselves or others (O'Nions & Eaton, 2020).

At present, PDA is not classified as a diagnosis within a sub-category of ASD in the International Classification of Diseases or the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual (O'Nions & Eaton, 2020).

Nature of PDA

Many children with ASD, due to their difficulties with social communication, rigid thinking, and adapting to change, will sometimes display challenging behaviors and try to avoid requests. Uncertainty about the outcome of a plan or change can cause anxiety and resistance. Autism spectrum disorder-appropriate strategies, such as routine and structure, are not helpful for children with a PDA profile (O'Nions et al., 2014). For children with the PDA profile, there is often no clear reason for their distress in response to seemingly harmless requests. The demand avoidance seen in those with the PDA profile usually appears illogical or counterproductive to an outsider; completing a simple task would require less effort than the distress caused by avoiding it. This avoidance has been described as "pathological" because it appears to lack logical consistency and can severely disrupt the individual's everyday functioning (O'Nions & Eaton, 2020). Newson (2003) argues that avoidance is driven by the child's need to reduce anxiety and distress triggered by real or anticipated demands. Outrageous acts and lack of concern for their effects draw parallels with conduct problems and callous-unemotional traits. However, reward-based techniques, which are effective in addressing conduct problems, appear not to be effective in PDA (O'Nions et al., 2014).

Demand avoidant behaviour should be viewed from the perspective of the autistic person facing situations they perceive as highly stressful. PDA has recently been recognised in autistic individuals who are especially vulnerable to stress and anxiety-related disorders. Recent research suggests that anxiety and other mental health problems could be underlying or contributing factors, even if their presence or impact is not easily noticeable to others. The approach to managing PDA is complicated because there is no one-size-fits-all "recipe," and what may work one day may not be successful the next. There is no substantial information about PDA for caregivers and parents to understand it; there is a mismatch of interpersonal dynamics, as there is no reciprocal understanding (Kildahl et al., 2021).

What we know is that anxiety, stress, intolerance of uncertainty, or trauma may contribute to the development of avoidant behaviours (Kildahl et al., 2021).

Key characteristics of the PDA brain

- Overactive amygdala: Triggers panic or shutdown over everyday tasks
- Impaired prefrontal cortex: Makes flexible thinking and transition difficult
- Chronic stress response: Keeps the nervous system in survival mode

Avoiding daily activities, even those they usually enjoy, is not intentional. It is a nervous system response to feeling a loss of control. Their brain remains on high alert, seeing even routine tasks like brushing teeth or putting on shoes as threats to their autonomy (Capanna-Hodge, 2025).

According to Dr. Ruth Fidler, UK PDA researcher: "PDA is not about oppositional behaviour - it is about panic. These children need co-regulation, not compliance training."

Identifisering en diagnose van PDA

Die studies wat tot dusver uitgevoer is met die oog op 'n toetsbattery vir diagnostiese doeleindes, maak staat op ouers se inligting. Vooroordeel kan bydra tot die ongeldigheid omdat dit beïnvloed is deur vooropgestelde idees en kennis van inligting wat gelees is op onbetroubare forums, of bevestiging van gedrag wat moontlik 'n ander oorsprong kan hê. Navorsers het dit bevind nadat hulle verslaggewing van ouers vergelyk het met die kind of adolescent se weergawe (Kildahl et al., 2021).

Verdere studies en navorsing word gedoen om die voorkoms van PDA ook in volwassenes te ondersoek, asook die intellektuele vermoë van die persoon met PDA (Kildahl et al., 2021). Alhoewel daar 'n verband is tussen angs, en onverdraagsaamheid jeens onsekerheid en PDA, word verdere studies gedoen om te bepaal wat die verband is tussen PDA en ander psigiatrisse toestande, epilepsie, ADHD, selektiewe mutisme en taal gestremdhede (Kildahl et al., 2021; O'Nions, 2020).
